

ALEXANDER VON HUMBOLDT AND THE BIBLE.

TRANSLATED FROM ADOLPH KOHN'S BOOK:
V. H. UND DES JUDENTHUMS.

Just lately, mentions one of the most brilliant cases, Professor Virchow, otherwise a very meritorious man, in his speech at the opening of the Humboldt Institute, for the education of the people of Breslau, vainly remarked that the time is coming when the natural philosophers will leave nothing undiscovered nor anything unexplained! Who will laugh? These expressions would not have been uttered by the famous Professor Virchow, in a public meeting, and in the presence of thousands, who would be tempted to pronounce the speaker to be one who escaped from a lunatic asylum, or that he is an illiterate man in his arrogant assumptions. We laugh at the mad, comical exaltation, and at the idolizing of self, which the young Hegelians practiced in the good old times, as recorded in the "German Year Books," and we persuade ourselves that such an exalted intoxication of the German thinkers and philosophers belongs to a succumbed standpoint of the days of yore; and yet, it is a fact, as we have seen, that even to-day, such a monster of a "two-legged God" in the presence of Mr. Virchow still lives and moves. But, in the most absurd and shocking way, the chiefs of the German materialistic school, like Carl Vogt and companions, behave: The late dictator of the empire, the famous professor of the ape theory, declared a few months ago, in a pamphlet, entitled "New Free Press of Vienna," that "man has thus far advanced as to create an eye far exceeding nature's own work." Rism teatent amic! Such nonsensical talk has neither been uttered nor published in the centuries past.

I pray the reader to pardon the unparliamentary expression, none. We know and value the services of Vogt well enough; yet we cannot refrain from making the assertion that the bold mocker of the Bible, who resides at Geneva, is not quite sane, and, therefore, not accountable for his sayings. "Can it be possible that a sound mind would express himself to Professor Stahr, that he came to the scientific conclusion that, like in mountains, there exist ridges in the brain, caused during youth by the trimming knife of the pedagogus, which frequently dictate to the normal final inferences, a commanding halt! These ridges exist in some, more or less, yet probably in all. Until these ridges go on smooth; but, beyond these ridges, a new domain commences, which stands in no relation to the others."

Hitherto, the maximum of printed folly was the maxim of Mr. Schmidt, "To relish life's folly merrily is the compendium of virtue;" but, no doubt, unjustly, for this dictatorial expression of Vogt is the superlative of nonsense! And yet, such naturalists, who are, perhaps, blessed with ridges and clefs in their brains, who do disturb the normal faculties of drawing correct inferences, are the leaders of fashion along the dusty avenues of natural science. To such bombastic heroes the modern generation shout jubilantly; on their words the rostrums and pulpits of atheism render oath. Such men have taken possession of the inheritance of Alexander von Humboldt.

But we return to Humboldt. How beautiful and tender his apprehension of the Jewish intuitions of nature was and is yet, we must confess, that the objections which have been made from some side or other, are not altogether groundless. At first, Humboldt did not say enough, and further, not in the right place, where it ought to have been said.

Humboldt ought to have noted that the whole Hebrew poetry is nothing but natural poetry.

While the Hellons have placed man and the human soul in the background of their poetic effusions, the Hebrews owing to the plain development of their national life, have placed nature, as the living figure in the landscape of their muse.

When the Bible starts, with the sublime image of a world's creation in the most perfect manner by God himself, by so doing he imprints an ineradicable stamp on the Hebrew muse.

Yes, the first truly poetical composition of the Scriptures, is the testament of Jacob, (1 Moses, 49), which consists chiefly in describing human traits by natural images. As that of easy downing waters, the crouching lion, who stoopeth down after having devoured his prey, the strong boned ass, crouching between the stables, the serpent by the way, a fleet behind, the faithful bough, the branches of which run over the wall; these images serve to give the characteristic traits of the sons of Jacob and their various tribes, and so it extends through the whole Scriptures. The Psalmist commences, and the just shall be like a tree by the rivulets of waters, the wicked like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

Even the dry proverbs of Solomon are rich in natural images, there is the path of the just, as the light of the sun which growth brighter and brighter until daylight.

There we shall drink water out of his well, and his wells will flow over the streets like streams of water.

The second important remark which Humboldt ought to have made, in order to characterize the Hebrew poetry, would have been this:

Whereas the Hebrews derive all their poetry from nature, and allegorize human events through natural images, they likewise transfer human events into nature itself, in making her conspicuous by the transformation of natural creations into human ones. Whole nature becomes a text for humanity, the heavens are the expanded tent awnings; the azure blue sky, the upper rafters of the same.

The sun goeth out as a bridegroom from his chambers, the snow turns into wool, the frost transforms into ashes, and the lightning into an arrow. God has a large storehouse out of which he supplies the wants of all living creatures.

When God manifests his mighty deeds, nature is called on the stage of action.

The sun is changed into darkness, the moon into blood, the stars loose their brilliant light, and the very earth shakes before his majesty, and so forth. It is very remarkable, that Humboldt does not mention Solomon's Song, which represents the highest trait of natural poetry, in this song we find what has hitherto been altogether foreign to the Hebrew muse, to-wit: Simple natural descriptions, as that of the return of spring, and the parables of nature, as expressed in the charming beauties of flowers, of trees, and of song, are truly rich in Oriental greatness.

"Rise thee up my beloved, My vine, and come along.
For the winter is past
The rain is over and gone its way.

"The flowers are seen in the land,
The time of the bird singing is come,
And the voice of the turtle dove is heard in the land.

"The fig-tree putteth forth its green figs, And the vines with young grapes, giveth forth a pleasant smell.
Arise thee my beloved, My fair one, and come along."

But these little sins of omission, on the part of Humboldt, find an easy excuse, that it was not the intention of the famous naturalist to write a complete treatise on Hebrew poetry, which was foreign to his life's task. In his own manner, he simply intended to give some indications and remarks concerning the natural intuitions of the Semitic people, with the view of showing the points of difference, between the Hindoo Germanic, and the Altaic tribes on the one side, and that of the Semitic tribe on the other.

But fairer seems to us, the criticism made on the invert manner of procedure of Humboldt's investigation.

Humboldt starts with the antique western Grecians and Romans, speaks on Christianity and on the medieval ages, then proceeds to the Hindoos and Persians, and he comes to the Hebrews and Arabians, from whom he quickly passes over into modern history.

Humboldt seems, doubtful, to have taken the right course. In order to follow the historical development of humanity, he ought to have commenced with the Hindoos and Persians; then to describe the influence of Hebrewism through Christianity on the medieval ages, and not till then proceed with the Grecians and Romans; or else to have gone straightway over from the Hebrews to Christianity, and from the medieval ages, to that of the modern world. What he alludes to in his start with the history of the Grecians and Romans, that the direction of the Christian mind is bent to prove out of the sublime order and the beauty of nature, the omnipresence and the benevolence of God, is strictly speaking the leading thought of the Hebrews from Alpha to Omega of the sacred Scriptures, as the words of Humboldt himself will sufficiently testify.

True, indeed, Christianity possesses the great merit of having transferred the God-consciousness of the Hebrew and their intuitions of nature to all other nations; but the contents of this sublime consciousness it has derived entirely from the Hebrews. Prior to the awakening of classical literature and before the basis of our modern culture was laid, the Hebrews made the most vivid and deep impression on all other nations by means of their sacred literature. When modern nations derive their education from the Roman and Grecian civilization they ought to remember, that the moral intuition of the former was likewise taken up from the Hebrews.

This unhistorical treatment is the more surprising owing to the fact, that the illustrious inquiring spirit was not in the least biased against the Hebrews, as we will further show. On the much boasted humanity of Christianity Humboldt remarks:

That deeply interwoven with Christian dogmas the conception of the true humanity in Christianity, had a poor and slow chance of development. In the time when the new faith of the church militant, became a church triumphant, at the Byzantine court, when out of political motives Christianity became the religion of State; its adherents fell into sectional dispute, commerce stopped, and the very foundations of the empire were shaken from its circumference to the centre by outward aggression. Even whole classes of humanity could find no protection for their personal liberties, neither from Church nor State. With justice, Humboldt remarks, that these unnatural hindrances, the clogs on the wheels of progress and on social refinements, were in no way done away by Christianity. The principle of individual and political liberty, is rather founded on the ineffaceable conviction of the equal prerogative of the one whole human race.

But Christianity is the attribute of a daughter religion of Judaism, embraced the leading thought of its mother, the liberty of man, and emancipated itself from her mother and made freedom the groundwork of all her future activities, and by and through it expounded her views into the freedom of nature.

May these beautiful words of Humboldt render its mite, to erase the exclusive monopoly of such big sounding phrases, like those of Christian German education, Christian morals, Christian civilization, and many others.

THE POOR-HOUSES OF THE AUSTRALIAN JEW.—A correspondent of the Australian Israelite says with grim humor:

"When the Jewish community undertook the erection of Jewish almshouses, the game was one I could not understand. The idea of an impoverished and really necessitous Jew in Melbourne was a thing I couldn't realize. The Jews are far too clever to be poor. They can't afford the luxury of woe. However, they built three almshouses—that is, three highly ornamental cottages in colored brick; and although completed a year, after superhuman exertions, they have been able to discover only one Jew in Victoria poor enough to occupy a cottage. There may be others, but they won't own up. They are afraid of injuring their credit."

BURNING OUT THE RUSSIAN JEWS.—It seems we are not having a monopoly of great configurations, for eight hundred buildings were recently burned in the town of Bogoslovsk, Russia. A great proportion of the inhabitants were Jews, and their oppressors are believed to be the incendiaries who caused the fire.

THE JEWS OF JAMAICA.—In the island of Jamaica the Jews are in high estimation. Many hold important administrative positions, and a considerable number are magistrates. The synagogue in Kingston has registers which date back 200 years.

At an Evangelical College at Hallas, Hungary, Mr. Jonas, a Jew, was appointed as regular professor, without the least objection or opposition from any one. If we consider the many objections to the appointment of Dr. Jutroevsky, of Posen, as professor of a citizens' school, and the difficulties made by the Prussian minister of instruction, we must confess that Austria is far in advance in liberality to Prussia.

Saumer-Konzert.

Nach langem vergeblichen Warten durchbrach endlich wieder einmal ein Sonnenstrahl das dunkle Gewölbe des trüben Dilettantismus, das in musikalischer Beziehung schon seit langen Monaten auf uns gelagert, und uns aus jener trübenden Atmosphäre empor in die reinen Sphären der Kunst, in denen in dem vielgepriesenen Lande des Goldes der Zugang leider nur sehr selten geöffnet ist. Ein Konzert in welchem Komponisten wie Haydn, Beethoven, Schubert, Weber und Mendelssohn vertreten sind, ist hier etwas so Seltenes, daß den Veranstalter derselben sicherlich unsere größte Dankbarkeit gebührt, weil die einzelnen Mängel, die in dem Konzert sein und werden sich gezeigt, als verschwindend gegen den lang entbehrten Genuß, den dasselbe uns verschafft, betrachtet müssen. Die rege Theilnahme, welche jenes Konzert bei unserem Publikum gefunden, spricht für sich nicht zu Ungunsten des Dirigenten, und läßt erkennen, daß in ihm ein reges Interesse für Kunst und speziell für gute, klassische Musik lebt. Nur sehr wenige unserer musikalischen Leiter hätten es bis jetzt gewagt, noch dazu durch eigene Schuld, nicht zu Ungunsten des Dirigenten, Kunstsinne zu nähren und das Feld, das sich ihnen in dieser Beziehung bietet, auszunutzen, obgleich es sicherlich, eben, weil es noch ein so unbebautes, unfruchtbares Feld ist, dem, wer es vertritt, das Beste an Kraft und Ausdauer zuwenden muß, um es zu bebauen, und es zu einem fruchtbaren Feld zu machen, und damit auch zu gleicher Zeit den Anfang einer neuen, besseren Ära in unserer musikalischen Verhältnisse zu bilden.

Das erste aus der dritten Reihe der Kammerkonzerte des San Francisco Musical Instituts, war jenseit der Orchestermusik gewidmet, jedoch fehlte es auch nicht an einzelnen Soli's. Die Einleitung des Konzertes bildete die Prometheus Ouvertüre von Beethoven, die glatt und sicher vom Orchester durchgeführt wurde, eine Eigenschaft, welche der Vortrag der darauf folgenden Pièce Concerto-Musik, „Inferno“ von Mendelssohn leider nur in sehr geringem Maße besaß. Die vortragende Dame Mrs. Little ist im Besitze einer Stimme von nur geringem Umfange, die spröde und wenig geschult, sich durchaus nicht zum Vortrage größerer Pièces eignet. Dazu kam nun noch das der Dame das Verhältniß dessen, was sie eigentlich sang, völlig abging und so war es auch nicht zu verwundern, wenn sie uns anstatt der herrlichen Töne Mendelssohns ein musikalisches Ungehör zum Vorschein gab, das mit der genannten Pièce nur sehr wenig Ähnlichkeit besaß. Von ungleich höherem Werthe war die Leistung Fräulein Zarewsky's, „F-moll Konzert“ von Weber für Piano-Forte unter Orchesterbegleitung. Dem sicheren Spiel der jungen Dame, so wie ihrer brillanten Fingerfertigkeit, welche die größten Schwierigkeiten spielend überwand, gelang es, den keinesfalls leichtesten Anforderungen, welche das Konzert an sie stellte, auf das Beste zu entsprechen. In gleichem Maße wie sie die technischen Schwierigkeiten des Stückes bewältigte, wußte sie auch in ihrem Spiel einen Ausdruck hineinzulegen, der nur dem tiefen Verständnis deutscher Musik entsprungen sein konnte. Einmalig wurde der Erfolg der jungen Dame durch die wenig prächtige Begleitung des Orchesters beeinträchtigt, welchem es gar nicht darauf anzukommen schien einige Pausen zu früh oder zu spät sich hören zu lassen. In dem Centre-Alte aus Romantische und dem Marche caracteristique von Schubert, die den Schluß des ersten Theiles bildeten, wachte dasselbe jedoch diese Schwäche wieder aus, denn der Vortrag beider Pièces ließ nur wenig zu wünschen übrig. Von den Leistungen des zweiten Theiles waren es die B-dur Symphonie von Haydn und die F-dur Ouvertüre, welche eine besondere Beachtung verdienen. In beiden prägte das Orchester Vorbeeren. Denn nicht allein, daß die Leistung derselben ihr Bestes gegeben hatte, die verschiedenen Elemente zu vereinen, so schien auch jeder einzelne der Mitwirkenden von dem Geiste befeuert, nach Kräften beizutragen, um ein gutes Zusammenspiel zu ermöglichen. Was ihnen denn auch auf das Beste gelang.

"GERKE" WINE, Washington, D. C., May 4, 1871. — Dear Sir: — Four twelve cases of wine reached me in due course. I took pains to send it to the best quarters as to judgement. Among others, General Sherman, Commodore Sherman, Internal Revenue. I am pleased to tell you that it has everywhere made the most favorable impression being by some excellent judges regarded as the future "Chateau d'Yquem" of California. In the general judgement, which is also mine, it is by far the BEST California wine yet seen. I assure you I am very proud of it as a native wine. It does you credit in every respect.
Very truly,
E. CASSERLY.

Dear Sirs: — We have tasted, tested and made comparisons with other California wines of the samples sent us. We have no hesitation in pronouncing the "Gerke" far superior to any Dry California Wine we have examined. The usual "earthy taste" (so designated) does not show in the wine sent us Your wine should be a powerful auxiliary to the cause of temperance, as it weighs less, "alcoholically" than the light wines of France or Germany.

Russ House Carriages.—The Russ House carriages, under the proprietorship of Samuel H. Moore, have become very popular. Among these equipages are Landaus and Clarencees, gold mounted, containing all the latest improvements. In addition to these are the regular carriages, in attendance at all hours of the day and night at the hotel, and at the bay and ocean steamers and various railway trains upon their arrival. The public will find it to their interest to patronize the Russ House carriages, because the rates are lower than those charged by others—and economy is the order of the day. A dollar saved is a dollar earned. Orders should be left in the order-box at the Russ House, and they will be promptly attended to.
Carriages for every purpose, and remember, over rates and better vehicles.

OCCIDENTAL CARRIAGES.—The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drives, while the two, four and six-hand Rockaways are all the rage among our Eastern tourists who come to see the sights. Orders may be left either at the Occidental Hotel, or at the stables, No. 1016 Stockton street, near Washington.

der Convention zwischen den Liebenden fallen ließ.

Der Pole, der sie trennen wollte, führte sie zusammen. Der Pole hatte damals schon den Plan, mit der ihm anvertrauten Kasse nach der Schweiz zu flüchten. Er hoffte, die hübsche und arme Jeanne doch noch zu überreden, ihr Loos an das seine zu ketten, wenn er ihr Reichthum und Wohlleben zu versprechen im Stande sei.

Doch vor Allem galt es, Revillon von ihr zu trennen, damit sie allein stünde und so-gen Verführungen leichter Gehör schenke.

Der Pole war zum Ausbruch entschlossen. Aus dem schmutzigen Boden, der sich in der Garibaldischen Abenteuerkass vorfindet, fiel es ihm leicht, zwei verwegene Kerle zu drehen, die dem Vagabond entspringen, jeder Schandthat fähig waren. Sie sollten Revillon fesseln und in ein abgelegenes Quartier bringen, wo er so lange schmachtete, bis der Pole mit Jeanne entflohen. Im Falle er sich wiedersehen sollten, ihm einige Dolchstöße zum ewigen Schweigen bringen.

Eines Abends, da sich die Liebenden von vergangenen Tagen von Erlebnissen ihrer Jugendzeit unterhielten, brachen drei Ver-mummte, mit Koolbern bewaffnete, in ihre Wohnung von der Rückseite durch den Garten ein und öffneten die Zimmertür, Revillon befahlend, ihnen zu folgen.

Jeanne erschrock, doch faßte sie sich schnell wieder, sie hatte den Polen trotz seiner Vermummung sogleich erkannt und ahnte, daß er das Schlimmste im Schilde führte.

Schnell hatte sie den Plan der Rettung gefaßt. Sie schleuderte die mit Petroleum vollgefüllte Lampe in das Bett, vor dem die Banditen standen, daß es im Augenblicke lichterloh brannte und Rauch das Zimmer anfüllte, und die Mörder, ohne daran denken zu können, ihren Ueberfall auszuführen, nur suchten, ihr Leben aus dem brennenden Haufe zu retten. Jeanne aber zog Revillon mit sich durch die Hintertür und machte die Anzeige. Der Pole war nicht mehr zu verhaften, er hatte mit der Kasse schon das Weste gesucht, einer der Banditen aber durch seine Brandwunden verrathen, gestand und entging der gerechten Strafe nicht.

Da das Feuer ihre Wohnung sehr beschädigt hatte und man dort noch mit Wunden be-schäftigt war, mußte ein anderes Unterfom-men gesucht werden und das wollte sich nicht finden.

Jeanne war darüber tröstlos, da sie fürch-tete, der Aufenthalt im Freien während der kalten Winternacht, könnte den kaum vom Fieber genesenen Revillon einen Rückfall zu-ziehen. Sie suchte ihn wie eine Mutter mit ihrem eigenen Mantel zu bedecken und als Revillon nach längerem vergeblichen Suchen nach einem Nachtlager vor den Treppen der Kirche müde zusammenbrach, setzte sie sich neben ihn und weinte bitterlich.

Sie weinen, Jeanne? weinen Sie um mich? Ist die Gesundheit, das Leben eines armen Gefangenen so viel werth, daß Sie daran weinen?

Jeanne gab keine Antwort und weinte nur noch heftiger.

Jeanne! liebes Mädchen, sprach Revillon in einer Gemüthsauflösung, die innig umschlingend, habe ich auch Alles verloren, bin ich ärmer, als der Letzte, ist selbst der Lebenshauch nicht mehr mein und kann von dem nächsten besten Bösewicht mir geraubt werden, dennoch bin ich reich, da mir im bittersten Leid Deine Liebe aufging.

Jeanne sprach noch immer kein Wort.
Verstämmt erwiderte das schöne Mädchen den Kuß, den ihr der Jüngling aufdrückte als die Befestigung ewiger Liebe.

So saßen die Aermsten, die beide nichts hatten wozu sie ihr Haupt legen konnten, noch um die Winternachtsstunde einer kalten Dezembernacht auf den kalten Stufen einer Kirche, die Kälte nicht fühlend, beim Strahl des Mondlichtes ihre wechselseitige Zuneigung sich aus den Augen lesend, Händedrucke und Küsse wechselnd.

O daß sie ewig grünen bliebe, Die schöne Zeit der ersten, jungen Liebe kann man auferstehen selbst zu einer Zeit, wo sonst nichts grünt.

Aber ich bin Jude, sprach endlich Revillon.
Thut das was, mein Geliebter? fragt die Zuneigung nach der Confession?

Und ich bin Deutscher! Wirst Du mir in's verhaßte Land Deiner Feinde folgen?

Als an's Ende der Welt folge ich Dir, war die Antwort. Wo Du weilst, ist auch meine Heimath. Deine Freunde sind nicht länger meine Feinde.

Wie schnell war der glühende Deutscherhaß der schönen Jeanne verschwunden.
Wachte er doch bei andern schönen Feindinnen der deutschen Barbaren ebenso schnell verschwunden.

Trotz der feurigsten Liebe möchte Revillon doch das Nachtlager auf den steinernen Treppen einer Kirche schlecht bekommen sein — zum Glück nahm eine vorbeiziehende Patrouille das liebende Paar mit in's Wachhaus, freilich mußte Jeanne sich einige rothe Anzüglichkeiten gefallen lassen über die Situation, in der sie gefunden wurden; doch als Revillon erzählt hatte, was ihm angefallen, hatte der Wachthausmann, ein Ita-liener aus anständiger Familie, Mitleid, und gebot den zügellosen Soldaten Achtung vor dem Unglück und der Weichlichkeit.

Habe ich doch immer Garibaldi gebeten, diesen polnischen Abenteuerern nicht zu ver-trauen und doch drängen sie sich in die widrigsten Stellen. Alle sind sie Dörfler und Generäle, aber Niemand weiß, wo sie zu diesen Titeln gekommen. Abenteuerer sind sie Alle, mauvais sujets, denen an der Republik nicht das Mindeste liegt, Garibaldi wird noch seine Erfahrungen mit ihnen machen. Dann wies er Jeanne ein kleines Nebenzimmer an, wo sie auf einem Strohsack und einem Kissen, das er von seinem eigenen Lager wegnahm, von den Anstrengungen, Schrecken und Sorgen dieses verhängnisvollen Abends ausruhen konnte.

Trotz ihrer Ermüdung schlief sie erst spät ein. Der schöne Traum der ersten Liebe vergoldete ihr einfaches Lager.

Revillon streckte sich auf eine Bank. Der Offizier gab ihm einen Soldatenmantel zum Schutze gegen die Kälte. Bald schlief er sanft und erwaichte gestärkt.

Während der Nacht war auch Feiwisch von seiner Expedition nach Fontenoy mit zwei deutschsprechenden Franktireurs zurückgekommen und war nicht wenig erstaunt, Bombiers in dem Gemache zu finden, das er bewohnt hatte. Er ließ nach Jeanne suchen, ohne sie zu finden. In aller Frühe kam er auch in's Wachthaus und da hörte er, daß Die welche er suchte, dort die Zeit zugebracht habe und noch ruhe.

Er störte weder ihren Schlaf, noch den Revillon's und suchte für sie und sich ein anderes Quartier, in welchem Beglücken er glücklich war, als die Liebenden ge-wesen.

Darauf kehrte er in's Wachthaus zurück, wo Jeanne und Revillon inzwischen erwacht waren, und nahm sie in die neue Wohnung mit.

Die ganze Erzählung Jeanne's, die sie ihm unterwegs machte, die unmerkliche Verlegenheit beider jungen Leute befestigte ihm den Verdacht, denn gefaßt, daß Beide Herzen sich gefunden haben möchten.

Er beschloß, Jeanne darüber sogleich zu befragen.

Sie läugnete es nicht.
Wohl aber prallten alle Versuche, von Feiwisch ab, die er, seine Hoffnung auf die-ses Verhältnis bauend, nun machte. Jeanne zu bestimmen, ihren Einfluß auf ihren Ge-liebten dazu zu verwenden, ihn dem Plane auf Rastatt dienstbar zu machen.

Jeanne's Liebe war für ihn, zu ungleichnützig, als daß sie sich dazu hergeben möchte ihrem Revillon zu etwas zu rathen, was ihn in Conflict mit seiner Ehre, seiner Pflicht hätte bringen können.

Auf Revillon direkt noch einen Angriff zu machen, um ihn zur Beihilfe am gewagten Unternehmen zu gewinnen, darauf verzichtete Feiwisch von allem Anfang an, der erste Verlaß hatte ihn schon belehrt, daß da gar nichts zu hoffen war.

Nur eines erlangte er von Revillon, natürlich ohne daß er ihm seinen geheimen Plan enthüllte, sondern unter dem Vorgeben, daß er in Rastatt gefangene Franzosen besuchend und zur Verbesserung ihrer Lage durch Ge-schenke etwas beitragen wollte; daß ihm Re-villon einen Empfehlungsbrief an seinen dort lebenden Onkel mitgab, einen Leberhändler, von dessen Haus aus Feiwisch und seine Spießgesellen unbedacht ihre Nege auszu-werfen hofften.

Nachdem er diesen Empfehlungsbrief erhalten, machte sich Feiwisch mit seinen Frantireurs gleich anderen Tags auf den Weg nach Rastatt, die Liebenden sich selbst und ihrem stillen Glück überlassend.

16. Capitel.

Gefangenensehen.
Gefangener Mann, ein armer Mann! lautet das Sprichwort, und man sollte meinen, die Mitglieder der grrrunden nation, die als stolze Sieger in Karlsruhe, München einziehen und von dort aus die weitere Promenade nach Berlin zu unternehmen gedachten, die sicher waren, wie unsere Länder, so auch die Herzen der stolzen Schönen Deutsch-lands zu unterjochen, ihre Herbe in den Füthen des Rheins und der Elbe und sich selbst mit Johannisberger und Rüdesheimer zu tränken, mußten sich recht arm und unglücklich fühlen, zwar mit allen Deeren, Warschällen und dem Kaiser selbst nach Deutschland zu kommen, aber als Gefangene und statt Johannisberger Pumpenheimer, statt Kapannen und Rheinleichen, Commisbrod und schwarzen Pumpenritzel zu verpeifen und den Liebesabenteuern seit ein Jahr lang Ballet zu sagen.

Schredlich für einen Franzosen, ein Jahrlang ohne Liaison! und das in einem Lande dessen Schönen vielfach zeigten, daß die Franzmannen, selbst die schwarzen Turco, nicht ohne etwas Sympathisches für sie wa-ren.

Variatio delectat! sagt manche Dame mit Horaz oder einem Andern, während Schafspeise spricht: Schwachheit, dein Name ist Weib.

Aber die Annahme, daß die Franzosen sich recht unglücklich in ihrer Gefangenschaft fühlten möchten, war doch nicht richtig, we-nigstens was die erste Hälfte ihrer Gefan-genenschaft betrifft.

Der Franzose ist leichtsinnig. Großpre-chtig weiß er seine Niederlage mit Verrath zu entschuldigen und sich selbst aufzulügen, daß er in das Land, was ihn eben als Kriegsgefangenen aufgenommen, vielleicht schon in wenigen Jahren zurückkehren werde aber dann als Sieger.

Gemüthlich in mancher Beziehung, wenn die Cigarette und der Rhythmus dieses Na-tionalgetränk, nicht fehlen, so ist er leicht aufbrausend, und ergreift gleich Partei, wenn einer seiner Kameraden wegen irgend eines Erfolges bestraft werden soll. In der Be-handlung der französischen Kriegsgefangenen muß man beßhalb Ernst mit Humanität und Zugänglichkeit auch für den geringsten Soldaten paaren. Wird er richtig behandelt, dann fühlt sich der französische Gefan-gene nicht sehr unglücklich in der deutschen Fest. Er hat auch weniger Ursache dazu, als der Deutsche in französischen Gefängnis-sen. Denn außer einer nahrhaften Kost, wie sie der deutsche Soldat auch nicht besser hat, werden ihm alle Freiheiten erlaubt.

Er bringt seine Zeit mit allerlei Spielen zu: Steinwerfen, Regel- und Karten-, dann einnem Blindeluhspiel, wo der Blinde nach dem Tone, welchen der Andere mit einem Stocke gibt, ihn zu fangen hat, wobei er hie und da hinfällt, wenn sich der Andere quer über den Weg legt, worauf dann Prügel und homerisches Gelächter der Zusehenden beginnen.

Wahrlich eine Nation gleich den Kindern ist dieses gefürchtete Meer, und wie diese, ist es nichts mehr, als das Lernen: Bisher kennt es kaum den Namen nach und nie liest ein Soldat ein solches, wenn er überhaupt lesen kann.

Die Turcos nehmen nicht Theil an diesen Spielen. Die ernststen Spielkameraden fauern an ihren Decken und Strohlagern, in Ge-danken an die Berge, die Hüfte und ihre dort zurückgelassenen Weiber denkend. Bisweilen stimmt einer vom andern, fast parlando einen eindringlichen Gesang an, wie er in Afrika gebräuchlich und von dem ersten Afri-kaner den Mungo Part so interessant beschrieben wurde. Die Andern fallen dann ein. Im Ganzen ist der blutgerigste Rabyle aber in der Gefangenschaft leichter zu behandeln, als die Juagen, diese verlorenen Söhne von Paris und andern großen Städten, die Unberücktheit und Drog, zum Eintritt in's Meer genöthigt und die jeder Nacht und Ordnung todtfeind sind.

CAUTION.

As many are selling Drops of various kinds to the public, and pretending that they are the genuine GARLAND'S VEGETABLE COUGH DROPS I take this opportunity to inform the public that my Cough Drops are only put up in bottles and boxes, and always have my trade mark on every bottle and box. The price is 75 cts. per bottle and 25 cts. per box. My trade mark cannot be used by others without being prosecuted to the extent of the law by me.

The most wonderful discovery in California is the extract from a plant that abounds in the mountains of our Golden State, which gives to Garland's Vegetable Cough Drops their wide reputation.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I have been appointed Agent for the

"OLD STYLE HAND MADE BOUR-BOY WHISKY."

This Whisky was distilled in the famous BLUE GRASS or BOURBON DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY, by the Old Fashioned Sour Mash Hand Process, and is in truth a pure article of "Old Bourbon."

It was brought around Cape Horn direct from the Warehouse in Kentucky, in double packages (each barrel being encased in an outer one), so as to preclude the possibility of adulteration on the route, and I warrant it to be without adulteration or mixture of any kind and as pure as when first distilled, and especially commend it to invalids and all others who wish a pure article of GENUINE CORNER DISTILLED WHISKY.

Acting under instructions from my principals, I shall sell this Whisky in GLASS ONLY, and MR. CHAS. HINKLEY, the well known Chemist and Druggist, No. 532 Post street, having made a careful analysis and found it pure and unadulterated, his certificate of that fact will be placed on each bottle.

The CALIFORNIA CARPET BEATING MACHINE has been in successful operation at the corner of Fifth and Market sts. over three years, and has proved its superiority over all others for cleaning carpets well, without the slightest injury to the fabric.
A small model of the machine was on exhibition at the Mechanics' Institute Fair, where the manner of working was fully shown. The carpets are cleaned by being beaten with a set of hickory sticks, about four feet long, which strike fairly, and so in beating by hand, being much easier on the carpet than the old machines with the loop-rope on a rotary, as that has a tendency to wear the carpet, by dragging, each time it strikes the carpet.

M. GUERIN & SON.

CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

M. GUERIN TAKES PLEASURE IN ANnouncing to his friends and the public that the establishment of his new firm (successors to GUERIN & KELLY) is at the old stand, Nos. 327 and 330 Bush street.

Has added largely to his manufacturing and importing facilities, and that it is now more than ever his aim to maintain the standing of his

BOOT AND SHOE EMPORIUM,

As the first on the Pacific Coast. The

LADIES', MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S

Department will be found unique, whether as regards assortment, variety, or workmanship; special attention being paid to the durability and finish of this class of goods.

GENTS AND BOYS'

Books, Shoes, and Gaiters made to order from the best material, and in the most approved style of workmanship. A perfect fit guaranteed in all cases. The public are requested to visit the MADE department before purchasing elsewhere, and examine for themselves the unusually large Stock of Goods, suited to every want and taste, which will be sold at Prices to Suit the Times.

M. GUERIN trusts that his record in this line of business during the past twenty-two years, in this city, will be a sufficient guarantee to his former patrons, of fair dealing, and that he will continue to be honored with their confidence.

N. B. All bills contracted by GUERIN & KELLY from 1st of Feb. 1871 to 1st of Aug. 1871, will be paid by M. GUERIN & SON, and all bills due to the late firm of GUERIN & KELLY, are payable only to
M. GUERIN & SON.
